

Jonathan Fluxman, LRCP, MRCS

Dr. Fluxman retired just before the pandemic after 25 years as a family doctor working in a deprived part of inner-city London. He returned to the NHS for a year after the onset of the pandemic. He has studied and written about airborne transmission and the impact of the virus on working class and racially diverse communities in the UK. He is the Covid Lead for Doctors in Unite (DiU), and a member of the Covid Pledge Campaign in the UK. He has contributed to a number of articles on Covid-19 published on the DiU website.
